

Spiderwort is native to the Americas and is edible.

Spiderwort

beneficial in helping one to heal after verbal or physical attack. Works to create protection by sealing wounds in the energy field

This essence
is a balm
after one has been stung
by the venomous words or actions of another.

The spider traps her prey in her sticky web
then poisons her victim, numbing them
so that she can then suck the life energy out of them.
Perhaps you have encountered a spider in your life and have been unable to free yourself from the sticky web.

Everybody knows a spider..... maybe this is a family member that knows you so well they can calculate exactly when to sting with a hurtful comment..... maybe a coworker who has spun their web so well you have become trapped, and now, immobilized, you are allowing yourself to be sucked dry of all your will and life energy.

Spiderwort, whose leaves resemble a spider's legs,
is first a balm
to help heal the emotional scarring and pain after attack.

It then works to seal the wounds in the etheric body..... wounds that resemble knife cuts because of their shape and the depth in which they injure the energy field.
Untreated, these wounds allow life energy to bleed or drain from the aura.
